

COVID-19

Traveling on Local Public Transportation During COVID-19

Public transportation is critical for many people in the region. Please travel only when necessary such as to work, medical appointments, and grocery shopping. When possible consider walking or biking

Whenever out in public, wear a mask. Wearing a mask protects you, other riders, drivers, and other public transit employees. Many people can spread the virus before symptoms start to show

Avoid touching your face, nose, mouth and eyes, to decrease the chance of germs entering your system

Wash your hands as soon as possible after leaving the bus, train, taxi or ride-hailing services. The virus can live on surfaces we commonly touch while traveling. Hand sanitizer is fine but a thorough handwashing with soap and water is best

Give yourself more time to travel. Metro has reduced its customer seating by 50 percent. The digital signs on the bus will tell riders to wait for the next bus, when 50

50 percent

When using ride-hailing services, stay cautious about protecting yourself and the driver. There may be a false sense of comfort because of the limited contact with other

For METRO schedules and to stay informed, subscribe to receive service alerts via email or phone. You can also follow METRO on Facebook and Twitter or call their customer service at 713-635-4000.

